WHAT'S NEXT »

TRYING TO PREDICT THE FUTURE IS OFTEN A FOOL'S ERRAND, AS PLENTY OF UNEMPLOYED FORTUNETELLERS AND STOCK-BROKERS CAN TELL YOU. BUT WE'RE UNAFRAID OF LEAPING INTO THE BREACH, BECAUSE WE'VE BEEN PAYING ATTENTION TO THE TRICKLING TRENDS THAT ARE SET TO BURST INTO FULL-FLEDGED PHENOMENA. THE STORIES THAT FOLLOW WILL KEEP YOU ABREAST OF WHAT'S COMING FOR THE ART WORLD IN 2007—BUT READ FAST, BECAUSE BY THE TIME YOU'RE DONE, THE FUTURE WILL ALREADY BE HERE.

EASTWARD, HO!

When it comes to predicting the future, most people would agree that it's a fool's errand. But we're unafraid of leaping into the breach, because we've been paying attention to the trickling trends that are set to burst into full-fledged phenomena. The stories that follow will keep you abreast of what's coming for the art world in 2007—but read fast, because by the time you're done, the future will already be here.

Other galleries are expanding up in the same region. In Chicago, the New Museum of Contemporary Art is opening a new space on Canal Street in the West Loop.
